General Comment	The ITS correctly sets only high level requirements on the need for companies to have an internal policy on assessing external credit assessments. However, Recital 3 of this ITS can be interpreted as requiring undertakings to perform their own credit assessments, rather than requiring an assessment of external credit assessments, thereby going against the Directive. The business model of credit risk assessment is a very complex one, requiring special expertise, It is very important that companies are able to determine appropriate approaches based on the
